Most Trusted And Excellent Guide In The Field Of Education.

Most of the students seems to be enjoying a fulfilling student life. But unbeknown to us, they are plagued with confusion. Their confusion arises from the numerous career paths available to them. Their unawareness of the nuances in each of the career paths, makes them all appear lucrative and promising. They fears to choose incorrectly and later regret the road not taken.

To add to students woes, they are unable to choose between higher education and placements. Torn apart by these difficult decisions, they seek help. When we walk through unknown terrain, it's rational to seek guidance of a mentor. ### FOUNDER AND MENTOR:

Many parents have probably felt at one time or another that one of their child's teachers was a "Miracle Mentor", a teacher who gets results where other teachers have failed. The term has become almost synonymous with his name. That person is Mr. Noble Peter, M.D of St.Marys Educational Trust.

A philanthropist, altruistic person. He was such an adept student, infact , that he began to teach classes himself at the age of 14. Noble paused his teaching career to attend college himself and he had been appointed as assistant professor in college. His ideas about language teaching were much admired by his colleagues.

GUIDELINES AND RECOMMENDATIONS:

Some would say, "what would you do if you didn't have to worry about money? Turn that into your career". Others would say, "pursue a career where you can make the most money from the least amount of work".

While both of these statements have value, there is a more thorough way to choose a career based on your passion, values and abilities. If you are confused about which career path to follow, consider some of these SMET methods:

1.Consider Your Hobbies: Before you do anything, consider what your hobbies are and write them down. Also think about why you enjoy these hobbies. If you like to bake, for example, perhaps the reason is because you like to create, and a creative career like wedding cake design would be a good fit for you. Or if you enjoy running, maybe it's because you like challenging yourself and to achieve a goal. A career that demands and rewards hard work with pay raises, promotions, or commissions could be one to consider.

2. Speak To A Career Counselor: A conversation with a career counselor may help clear your mind and point you in the right direction. He or she can also tell you about careers you had no idea even existed.

3. Take A Test:

A career counselor may suggest you take a test to help discern and guide you to areas of interest. If you look for tests online, be careful. Some tests cost money and may not be completely (or even remotely) reliable. It is best to take a test under the guidance of a career counselor who can discuss the results with you.

4. Get A Broad Education:

If you are a student struggling with what to major in, aim for a broad education instead of guessing at something specific. If a flash of inspiration later reveals your career path, you can specialize in it then. For example, if you like science, but don't know which area you want to pour your heart and soul into, don't major in something like Cell Biology. One thing that led me to my Industrial Engineering major was that it covered a range of topics like math, business, and even sales.

5. Take A Class:

While taking a class in meteorology may not tell you what it is like to be a meteorologist, you will find out whether or not you enjoy the subject. If you think you may be interested in a particular area, sign up for a class to find out for sure.

1. Remember Your Values:

If you would like to be involved with your family, you will not want a career that requires heavy travel. Take an honest look at your priorities and understand how or if they'll be affected by the careers you consider. If a potential career will not allow you to live the way you want, check it off your list.

2. Don't Settle: If you would like to be involved with your family, you will not want a career that requires heavy travel. Take an honest look at your priorities and understand how or if they'll be affected by the careers you consider. If a potential career will not allow you to live the way you want, check it off your list.

HAVE
MINDSET

3. Switch Careers:

If you make a wrong turn, you are not stuck. You can change career paths at any time. Besides, it's normal to have several careers throughout a lifetime. Plus, many entrepreneurial people are creating independent careers out of their hobbies, education, and past work experience by starting a business.

The more effort you put into your search for the right career, the more you'll get out of it. Diligently invest your time and effort because change like this is rarely easy, but often rewarding.
